

Zika virus infections - Reminder to air carriers

With regard to the Zika Virus infections ENAC informs all carriers of the following:

Regardless of the origin of the flight, aircrafts arriving to domestic airports must hold on board the certificate of residual disinsecting according to the ICAO Annex 9 and the provisions of ENAC Circular EAL 10 dated 21.9.2012.

Imported goods that may be considered risky with regard to infected mosquitoes (such as tyres, flowers, ornamental plants, logs of exotic wood) either must travel with certifications attesting the successful disinfestations before they were dispatched from the affected areas, or they have to be subject, at the importers' expenses, to an appropriate disinsecting treatment with insecticides at residual action in airport.

Surveillance actions are put in place by the Airport Authority of the Ministry of Health to detect possible imported cases of infection of Zika virus.
